

Briggs Pille

Partner
Himformatics LLC

Briggs Pille is an accomplished information technology (IT) healthcare consulting executive who understands what it takes to succeed in today's environment. As a partner at Himformatics, Briggs is able to focus on and collaborate with healthcare clients to tackle new challenges including optimizations, interoperability, data governance and analytics, and digital engagement.

Over his more than 25-year career, Briggs has moved from technical resource to implementation manager, strategist, organizational leader and trusted advisor. He has planned and managed more than 75 successful Core System and Electronic Medical Record projects, consulted on all IT lifecycle stages and is knowledgeable in multiple evolving topics such as data governance, analytics, Health Information Exchange, and digital engagement. He has served a wide range of clients from health systems, academic medical centers and pediatric care facilities to community hospitals, physician organizations and health plans.

Before Himformatics, Briggs was with Eclipsys (now Allscripts), where he was a vice president of professional services, and First Consulting Group (now CSC), where as vice president he managed various implementation practices. He began his career at Andersen Consulting (now Accenture), where he worked on networking, distributed computing and client server development.

Briggs has developed a reputation for his willingness to think broadly, his flexibility and his ability to deliver value through creative, but practical solutions. Briggs earned a bachelor's degree in physics and computer science from Butler University.

About Himformatics Himformatics harnesses IT and business expertise to help clients deliver healthcare in a way that makes a difference. From strategy to implementation, our select team of consultants specializes in getting the most value from IT to improve clinical processes and financial performance, and ensure regulatory compliance. Our expertise spans a range of comprehensive and specialized services for healthcare organizations big and small. We draw on our decades of experience to earn a place as a trusted adviser to your business, and we thrive on delivering exceptional service and results.

himformatics.com